THE COX FAMILY

November 15th, 2011...

will be a day not long forgotten by the Cox Family. Staff Sargent Ross Cox was serving his 3rd Tour of Duty in Afghanistan as a platoon Sargent when he and his men came under fire. While attempting to return to his vehicle, Sargent Cox struck an IED (roadside bomb) and was thrown onto his back, unconscious. He was initially treated on the battlefield and then flown to Kandahar, Afghanistan, where his left leg was amputated. Cox was then taken to Germany for further medical care. A 10" rod was inserted into his broken right leg, and Cox endured many more operations to repair his right calf, and left side where the blast occurred. He was then transferred to Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas, for further rehabilitation. Sargent Cox had served 11 years in the Army and had just reenlisted for a further 9 years when he was injured. He and his wife, Nicole, are West Texans originally from Abilene and have two daughters, Peyton (13) and Hope (3), and two sons, Brennan (9) and Asher (2). The family is currently staying in San Antonio at the Center for the Intrepid, but will soon be moving to Odessa, where the Cox Family will finally call home.

Along with Operation Finally Home, Permian Homes is excited to be a part of providing the Cox Family with a custom and mortgage-free home right here in Odessa.

We ask you to join with us as we help make this transition a little easier for the Cox Family and donate to Operation Finally Home.
